Paul Quinn College

Re: Support Paul Quinn College

I am not a native Texas; however, I do understand the importance of an education. From what I know of Paul Quinn College, they are not only changing the lives of their students, but of future generations of their students. That change must start somewhere. If not for a college like Paul Quinn, many students would never attend college. Everyone is not ready or equipped to attend a major university right out of high school.

I understand the importance of Paul Quinn College. I elected to start at my local community college in Detroit, although I had been accepted to Wayne State University. I didn't feel I was ready for the big university. And I too was the first in my family to attend college. I later attended a University and earned my BBA and MBA. I also have a brother that has his BBA and a sister that has her MBA. Sometimes all it takes is for one family member to lead the way.

I encourage Paul Quinn College to continue with the strides they have made. Paul Quinn College is not only providing students with an education, for they are changing lives, in which is also changing communities.
